Dear Section Council members,

The 2016 conference will be held in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. It is a joint conference between 3 groups: MLA, CHLA/ABSC (Canadian Health Libraries Association-Association des biblioth?ques de la sant? du Canada) and ICLC (International Clinical Librarian Conference). The Program Committee for this 2016 meeting was charged to come up with a method of attracting, evaluating, and selecting member-contributed content (papers, posters, lightning talks, panels, and section-invited speakers) that equally included members from all 3 groups.

Our biggest challenge is that the planning timeline must be moved up. Members of all 3 organizations will need at least 6 months between notification of acceptance and the start of the conference to obtain permission and funding from their institutions and to obtain passports. This earlier timeline is non-negotiable.

Attached are the goals we started with, and the executive summary of the plan we devised. It radically changes the methods of member-contributed programming for the 2016 meeting only.

*/ WE NEED YOUR FEEDBACK ON THIS PLAN BY JAN 29TH. /* Please share your input with all members of section council: will this work for your section? For MLA overall? What changes do you recommend? What problems do you anticipate? I know you have extensive experience with planning conferences, either national or local, and I would appreciate your expertise and experience. Once we hear from you, I'll share all your comments with the JPC, we'll adjust our plan to include your feedback, then move it forward to the Boards of all 3 organizations.

Thank you for your feedback. Please let me know if you have any questions.

Subject: [Research-mla] Updating the Research Section poster for MLA 2015 meeting
Message-ID: <1658522333.607067.1423256164372.JavaMail.yahoo@mail.yahoo.com>

Dear Research Section members,

Hard to believe the MLA annual meeting is just a few months away.....We have a Research Section poster that is online and that we displayed last year at MLA and several chapter meetings --
<http://research.mlanet.org/wp/poster/>There were a few tweaks we had already identified, but now is the time for us to decide on any other updates.

1. Please take a look at the poster and let me know of any changes or additions you would like to see to reflect what is going on in the section.

2. A few volunteers are needed to help with updating the poster, staffing the poster at the MLA annual meeting, and taking the poster to other MLA chapter meetings this fall.? Since we will have two posters, we hope to be able to reach more of the meetings.? Please let me know if you would like to volunteer for any of these activities.?? The times for the poster staffing at MLA are below.? We would like to have two people each for 20 minute slots, so that everyone still has time to see the other posters.
Section and chapter posters will be located along with contributed posters in the exhibit hall of the Austin Convention Center.?these posters will be staffed ??Sunday, May 17 from 2-2:55pm?

I would love to have the poster update and MLA staffing volunteers figured out by March 1.?

Please let me know if you have any questions or suggestions!Kris AlpiNorth Carolina State University Librarieskris at jeffalpi.net

Message-ID: <D0FED58E.33E38%tew2004@med.cornell.edu>

This week we will hold the MLA Research Section Elections. The Elections committee was comprised of Donna Gibson, Director, Memorial Sloane Kettering Library, Nancy Tannery, Senior Associate Director, University of Pittsburgh Health Sciences Library System, and myself. I want to thank Donna and Nancy for the huge help they were in putting together a very capable slate of candidates for this year's election.

The candidates are as follows:

Secretary/Treasurer
Martha Earl, MSLS, AHIP
Tony Nguyen, MLIS, AHIP

Chair-Elect/Program Chair
Marie Ascher, MS, AHIP
Carol Perryman, Ph.D.

Nominee to the MLA Nominating Committee
Erla Heyns, Ph.D.
Michele Tennant, Ph.D.

Here is a link to vote: <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/JJ87YPF>

The ballot will close at midnight on Friday, April 13, 2015. Please vote NOW!

Thank you!

Terrie Wheeler

Subject: [Research-mla] Results of the Research Section Election for 2015 - 2016

Message-ID: <D10574FB.3A311%tew2004@med.cornell.edu>

Greetings Section Members,

I want to first thank all of our candidates for showing a strong interest in the Research Section by offering to run. This was an amazing election with photo-finish results. And I want to thank all 76 section members who voted!

The Secretary-Treasurer candidates were separated by 3 votes, and the Chair-Elect Program Chair candidates were separated by 4 votes. In my humble opinion, all are winners, but the greatest winner is the Research Section, which will have capable leadership and active involvement in this next year as Emily Mazure takes over as Chair at our Spring annual meeting.

With that said, here are the results:

Secretary-Treasurer: Martha Earl, MSLS, AHIP

Chair-Elect/Program Chair: Marie Ascher, MS, AHIP

Section Nominee to the MLA Nominating Committee: Michele Tennant, Ph.D., AHIP

Finally, I want to thank our nominating committee who helped me put together this dynamic slate: Donna Gibson and Nancy Tannery.

Congratulations to our new officers, and thank you to all candidates who served the section through your candidacy!

Cheers as we look forward to the Research Section's 2015-2016 year,

Terrie
Research Section Past Chair and Elections Committee Chair

Subject: [Research-mla] volunteer(s) needed to help organize/run the MLA research awards judging
Message-ID: <54ECE6AE.5020607@uic.edu>

Dear Research Section members,

I am looking for a volunteer or two to help organize the MLA research awards judging. This involves helping to organize the pre-judging and the judging at MLA itself, requesting and recruiting volunteers to help with the judging, and working with the results of the judges to determine the winners, and lastly notifying the winners. Ideally, this person(s) has volunteered to be a judge in the past, has had experience presenting papers or posters, and would be willing to take on this role for at least two years. I would like to step down after this MLA is over from organizing/ co-coordinating the judging so it would be good to have someone that would be willing to take this on for a few years (and work with an additional MLA research section member volunteer next year to help carry on this very important role of the MLA Research section.)

Please let me know offline if you are interested in stepping into this role. My email is sgroote at uic.edu.
Thanks for considering.
Sandy

P.S. The call requesting volunteers to help with the pre- conference and on-site conference judging will go out in the next week or two so please watch your email for the request.

*Evidence Based Practice: Online Continuing Education Course***

*Overview***

This asynchronous online course is designed to introduce health and information professionals to the principles of Evidence Based Practice (EBP) including the steps of the EBP process, understanding the literature of evidence, and an overview of epidemiological concepts. Recorded lectures, independent readings, assignments, and threaded discussions provide an opportunity for assimilation, interaction, and exchange of ideas. Formative feedback will be given throughout the course.

It will take approximately 20-30 hours to complete the course. Consider reserving 3 hours of dedicated time per unit for optimum benefit. The course is approved for 21 Medical Library Association (MLA) Continuing Education credits.

*Instructors***

An experienced group of University of Illinois at Chicago instructors from the Library of the Health Sciences, Department of Pediatrics, and Department of Medical Education will lead the course. They are: Sandy DeGroote, MLIS; Jo Dorsch, MALS; Carmen Howard, MSLS; Emily Johnson, MLIS, Jordan Hupert, MD; and Alan Schwartz, PhD. Course instructors will be available by e-mail to answer questions or provide guidance.

*Requirements***

Access to the course is through UIC's Blackboard system. Once you are registered you will receive a temporary UIC NetID and password for access. If you are in a hospital environment, you should check with your IT department to determine if there are firewalls that would interfere with your ability to access all aspects of the class.

You will also need:

Internet Access

Word or Open Office

Adobe Acrobat Reader

Windows Media Player or comparable media software

A short tutorial <<http://bit.ly/q0pKpt>> is available for those not familiar with Blackboard.

All readings will be available from the course site.

There is no required text, but having one of these texts for reference is recommended:

1. Straus SE, et al. Evidence-Based Medicine: How to Practice and Teach EBM
2. Badenoch D, Heneghan C. Evidence-based Medicine Toolkit
3. Glaxziou P, et al. Evidence-Based Practice Workbook.
4. Guyatt G., et al. Users' Guides to the Medical Literature. Essentials of Evidence-Based Clinical Practice.

*Registration*

Cost is $150.00.

The course runs from March 16th ? April 26th, 2015.
The course is limited to 25 registrants.

To register:

Visit the course registration site at https://appserv7.admin.uillinois.edu/FormBuilderSurvey/Survey/UIC\_Library/Health\_Sciences/Evidence\_Based\_Practice\_\_\_Spring\_2015/.

You will be asked for information that is required to establish access to the course site.

Payment may be made online or by sending a check for $150.00 made payable to the University of Illinois at Chicago to:

Message-ID: <F39DBA60-1777-400A-9451-874E57C540E0@uic.edu>

Dear Colleagues,

I am writing to you in your capacity as a member of the MLA Research Section. Jennifer Lyon, Terry Henner, and I, co-chairs of the Research Awards Committee, would like to invite you to serve as a judge (or pre-judge) for research papers and/or posters prior to and/or at the 2015 annual meeting in Austin in May. If you are presenting a paper, you may still participate as a poster judge. Poster presenters may participate as paper judges. Even if you are not planning to attend the annual meeting, we will be reviewing the abstracts of the posters and papers prior to the meeting to narrow down the number of submissions to be judged onsite. We could use your help.

If you are willing to help, please simply fill out this online form by Wednesday March 18:
https://docs.google.com/a/uic.edu/forms/d/1SsUr0VkdHPBJ0STwcubnIxeYb\_jRgNbHBPqPCAd7sA/viewform

Duties for those pre-judging are as follows:

View assigned paper or poster abstracts online before the meeting and rate the abstract using the abstract section of the judging evaluation forms that will be provided.

Duties for those judging at MLA are as follows:

If possible, attend the meeting of the Research Awards Committee on Sunday, May 17 from 8:00 a.m. ? 9:00 a.m. to receive judging instructions. If this is not possible, other arrangements can be made.

The poster judges visit assigned posters during the poster session window to be able to talk with the presenters. The paper judges attend assigned paper sessions.

All judges complete the evaluation forms and submit the results online by May 30, 2015 or by an otherwise agreed upon deadline. If you are not able to submit the results online, results can be submitted in print by the end of the annual meeting.

Thanks,
Sandy De Groote

Apologies for the cross-posting-

All librarians are encouraged to participate, whether or not you have systematic review experience!

You are invited to participate in a research study entitled "Challenges, Barriers, and Outcomes of Health Sciences Information Professional Involvement in Systematic Reviews."

The aim of this study is to gain a better understanding of the experience, challenges, and outcomes of information professionals' participation in systematic reviews.

This online survey will ask questions about experience, challenges, barriers, and outcomes related to supporting and conducting systematic reviews.

Participation in the study is restricted to information professionals who either serve medical/health sciences clientele or have job functions within a medical/health sciences environment. This can include librarians, information professionals, library assistants, and other library staff. You do not need to have prior systematic review experience to participate in the study.

The survey will take approximately 20-30 minutes and you can close and return to the survey if your browser's cookies are enabled.

Participation is anonymous unless you volunteer your name and contact information.

By participating, you will have an opportunity to contribute to the information science profession body of research by participating in this research. The results of this study will be presented as a poster at MLA 2015.

The survey can be found at
https://uarizona.col.qualtrics.com/SE/?SID=SV\_82ZpZimskm00Sfr

Note: if the survey does not display properly, please try another browser.

The survey will close March 27, 2015 at 5PM Pacific Time.

Dear Colleagues,

Just a reminder and last request to ask for your assistance in judging the papers and posters at MLA. Even if you won't be at MLA, we could use your help with pre-judging.

If you are willing to help, please fill out this online form by

Wednesday March 18:

Greetings!

I don't believe it is listed online yet, so please mark your calendars for our Business Meeting, scheduled on 5/19 from 7-9am in room 15. Hope to see many of you there! :)

I would like to generate a list of all of the wonderful papers and posters our members will be presenting at this year's Meeting. We can then support our fellow RS members by attending each other's paper or poster sessions and/or offering congratulations when we run into each other at the Meeting.

If you are presenting a paper or poster (doesn't need to be research), please fill out the very brief online form for each paper and poster:

https://duke.qualtrics.com/SE/?SID=SV\_9Hzo459bRbfSkyp

You can also email the author name(s), the title of your paper/poster, and the session date and time for each paper or poster you have to me at emily.mazure at duke.edu<<mailto:emily.mazure at duke.edu>>.

If everyone can please complete the online form or email me the information by Friday May 1st. I will compile what is sent to me and send a full list out to everyone.

Thank you,
Emily

About CHSI 2015

CHSI 2015 is an interactive online tool that produces health profiles for all 3,143 counties in the United States. Each profile includes key indicators of health outcomes that describe the population health status of a county and factors that have the potential to influence health outcomes, such as health care access and quality, health behaviors, social factors and the physical environment. CHSI 2015 supports comparisons to peer counties, HP 2020 targets and national performance, and is designed to complement other available sources of community health indicators including the County Health Rankings and Roadmaps. First issued in 2000, CHSI 2015 represents the collaboration of public health partners in the public, non-profit and research communities. Visit the new CHSI Web application today!

I am happy to share that we have published the latest issue of AMSRJ, clocking in at 192 pages! This issue features the work of medical students from:

Albert Einstein University, Cleveland Clinic, Columbia University, Commonwealth Medical College, East Tennessee State University, Florida International University, Georgetown University, Harvard University, Johns Hopkins University, Louisiana State University Health-Shreveport and New Orleans, Mount Sinai, Northeast Ohio Medical University, Northwestern University, Ohio University, Pennsylvania State University, Perdana University (Malaysia), Queen's University (Canada), Texas Tech University, Tufts University, University of California-Irvine, University of Hawaii, University of Illinois-Chicago, University of Maryland, University of Miami, University of Tennessee-Memphis, University of Texas-Galveston, Western University, and Yale University.

The current issue page, which has links to the full issue in e-reader format as well as to individual article PDFs can be found here:

As a brief general status update, our team now includes 17 student editors and 85 active student reviewers from medical schools across the globe. Our next issue will be published in May.

*EBLIP** Seeks Writing Assistants*

*Evidence Based Library and Information Practice* (*EBLIP*) seeks volunteers to be part of its established Writing Assistance Team. Members of the team will offer writing assistance to non-native English speakers who submit promising papers to *EBLIP* but which need revision in terms of grammar and general clarity of language. *EBLIP* Editors will refer authors to a member of the Writing Assistance Team on a case by case basis. The team will provide writing support that improves the quality of English and fluency of the paper, enabling the copyediting process to proceed more easily. Writing Assistants will be acknowledged in published submissions.

Ideal candidates will possess excellent written communication skills, attention to detail, and some experience in copyediting or academic writing.

Interested persons should send a statement of interest, indicating areas of strength they would bring to the role, as well as a brief resume to Lorie Kloda, Editor-in-Chief, lorie.kloda at mcgill.ca, by May 1, 2015. Those invited to join the team will be appointed for a term (renewable) of two years.

*Please note that *Evidence Based Library and Information Practice* is a non-profit, open access journal and all positions are voluntary and unpaid. The positions are an excellent opportunity for continuing professional development and gaining insight into writing for publication and the editorial process.

*About the journal***

Published quarterly by the University of Alberta, this peer-reviewed, open access journal is targeted at all library and information professionals interested in an evidence based model of practice. By facilitating access to librarianship research via original research articles and evidence summaries of relevant research from the library literature, *Evidence Based Library and Information Practice *will enable librarians to practice their profession in an evidence based manner.

STELLA 2016 ?- May 20 & 21
University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

What is the STELLA Unconference?

STELLA = Science, Technology & Engineering Library Leaders in Action

An UNCONFERENCE is a facilitated, participant-driven conference where the attendees drive the agenda and freely form new discussions and sub-groups as ideas emerge.

This free event is for current or aspiring science, technology, engineering and medical/health librarians.? You will actively participate with other STEM-focused librarians to shape two days of in-depth discussion. The final agenda will be decided at the time of the conference (instead of watching presentations on topics that were arranged a year or more before the conference).

The previous three STELLA meetings have attracted between 60-90 STEM librarians from all over the country. Come make STELLA 2016 the best yet! The STELLA sign-up list will open in November.

If you are interested in receiving updates about the unconference, add yourself to the Stella-l discussion list at <https://listserv.du.edu/mailman/listinfo/stella-l>? (This is a relatively quiet list.) The STELLA web site (<https://stellagroup.wordpress.com/>) will be updated soon.

Message-ID: <55366C4E.3000201@uic.edu>

Dear Colleagues,
We could still use some on-site judges for the MLA Research Awards. If you plan to go and are interested in judging the posers and/or papers, please fill out the below form by the end of the day tomorrow (April 22). https://docs.google.com/a/uic.edu/forms/d/1SsUr0VkdHPBJ0STwcdubnIxeYb\_jRgNbHB-PqPCAd7sA/viewform

As a reminder to those who volunteered to be pre-judges, if you have not already done so, please complete your assignments by noon tomorrow (April 22). Please email me if you have questions about your assignments.

Thanks to all who volunteered for pre-conference or on-site judging or both!

Thanks,

Greetings!

If you haven't yet, please let me know if you are presenting a paper or poster at MLA this year so I can include it in the list I'll be sending out.

If you are presenting a paper or poster (doesn't need to be research), please fill out the very brief online form for each paper and poster:

https://duke.qualtrics.com/SE/?SID=SV\_9Hzo459bRbfSkyp

You can also email the author name(s), the title of your paper/poster, and the session date and time for each paper or poster you have to me at emily.mazure at duke.edu<<mailto:emily.mazure at duke.edu>>.

If everyone can please complete the online form or email me the information by Friday May 1st. I will compile what is sent to me and send a full list out to everyone.

Research Section members,

We would like to appoint a Research Mentorship Co-Coordinator to serve along with current Research Mentorship Coordinator (Susan Lessick) to plan and implement activities and events for the RS research mentor program. The RS mentor program provides personal growth opportunities for members and strives to increase the research engagement of librarians through mentoring and collaboration. The service tenure for the Co-coordinator position is 3 years and in the first year this person will work closely with the current coordinator who will be rotating out of the position in May 2016.

If you are interested in serving as the Research Mentorship Co-Coordinator or if you want to learn more about the position, please contact Susan Lessick, slessick at uci.edu, by May 11, 2015. We strongly encourage you to volunteer for this position because it is a great opportunity to collaborate and contribute to our Section and MLA research efforts.

Hi everyone.

I taught my CE class, Research for Hospital Librarians, on Friday to the Metropolitan Detroit Medical Libraries Group. When I was discussing authorship, one of the participants made what I thought was a really good suggestion that I wanted to share and get your feedback on.

My comment was that, as hospital librarians, we likely aren't getting authorship on publications when we probably should be. I know from my own experience I am not and I've finally started saying something about it. I encouraged my class to also speak up for themselves if they know they're doing significant work for someone who is writing, publishing, presenting, etc. That's when one of them said that she would like to see the Research Section and MLA partner with ALA and put out a joint statement TO THE AMA on the importance of librarians and authorship. She thought it may be an effective way to have more clinicians realize and appreciate how much work we do, as opposed to bench or more traditional researchers who often have a different type of relationship with the library and (I suspect) are more likely to include librarians as authors. She also thought it may reinforce the fact that having a librarian as an author lends extra weight to the article since it is more likely to have a thorough background search done first.

Thoughts? I know the number of hospital librarians is small, if there are even any others besides myself. Quite honestly, I don't know.

Regardless, what do you guys think? Should we approach this, and if so, how? Should it be an agenda item at the business meeting at MLA?

I totally agree. Perhaps a PR campaign about the value of the researcher for publication that could be attached to the research packet? Or how about an article itself about this that could be promoted to department heads etc. just spinning and throwing out thoughts.

Hi all

I think our colleagues are wrapping up a survey on authorship practices by medical librarians (Tara?? is it Mayo librarians?) the results of which could provide some supporting basis for the PR campaign.?? My colleague Bertha Chang and I presented on authorship patterns with librarians in Web of Science at ACRL 2013 and are wrapping a manuscript to submit for publication this summer/fall.? We'd be happy to share our initial findings.? I think Kevin at MLA and our incoming president Michelle Kraft are very interested in PR campaigns so I am copying them on this message.....

You bring up a thorny and important issue.

National Jewish Health librarians negotiate authorship for all practice guideline collaborations for the fact that our involvement meets ICMJE guidelines. We make, what I consider to be, substantial contributions, which go beyond technical contributions. That said, authorship allocation is not straightforward. How is ghost or gift authoring perceived by the larger scientific community? Authorship assumes that one takes responsibility for quality and content of the whole publication. Many of us do contribute more than ?traditional? services, and it would serve us well to work together to help get appropriate credit for our efforts.

Thank you kindly for the conversation..

etc. That's when one of them said that she would like to see the Research Section and MLA partner with ALA and put out a joint statement TO THE AMA on the importance of librarians and authorship. She also thought it may reinforce the fact that having a librarian as an author lends extra weight to the article since it is more likely to have a thorough background search done first.

Thoughts? I know the number of hospital librarians is small, if there are even any others besides myself. Quite honestly, I don't know.

Regardless, what do you guys think? Should we approach this, and if so, how? Should it be an agenda item at the business meeting at MLA?

If I may throw something in the ring to consider: is it really "authorship" in the traditional sense of the word? Yes, we may have contributed the lion's share of literature but we didn't read it, digest it, analyze it or extract from it. What we did was contribute. So perhaps asking for a nod in the acknowledgment section is more appropriate (and easier to obtain)?

You bring up a thorny and important issue.

National Jewish Health librarians negotiate authorship for all practice guideline collaborations for the fact that our involvement meets ICMJE guidelines. We make, what I consider to be, substantial contributions, which go beyond technical contributions. That said, authorship allocation is not straightforward. How is ghost or gift authoring perceived by the larger scientific community? Authorship assumes that one takes responsibility for quality and content of the whole publication. Many of us do contribute more than 'traditional' services, and it would serve us well to work together to help get appropriate credit for our efforts.

Thank you kindly for the conversation..

Hi everyone.

I taught my CE class, Research for Hospital Librarians, on Friday to the Metropolitan Detroit Medical Libraries Group. When I was discussing authorship, one of the participants made what I thought was a really good suggestion that I wanted to share and get your feedback on.

My comment was that, as hospital librarians, we likely aren't getting authorship on publications when we probably should be. I know from my own experience I am not and I've finally started saying something about it. I encouraged my class to also speak up for themselves if they know they're doing significant work for someone who is writing, publishing, presenting, etc. That's when one of them said that she would like to see the Research Section and MLA partner with ALA and put out a joint statement TO THE AMA on the importance of librarians and authorship. She thought it may be an effective way to have more clinicians realize and appreciate how much work we do, as opposed to bench or more traditional researchers who often have a different type of relationship with the library and (I suspect) are more likely to include librarians as authors. She also thought it may reinforce the fact that having a librarian as an author lends extra weight to the article since it is more likely to have a thorough background search done first.

A way to address this question is to consult the ICMJE guidelines for defining authorship:

<http://www.icmje.org/recommendations/browse/roles-and-responsibilities/defining-the-role-of-authors-and-contributors.html>

Realistically, I think that we sometimes would be more accurate and effective by advocating for ourselves for mention in the acknowledgments in an article.

Also, I wrote two pieces for librarians on the subject of defining and the order of authorship in Hypothesis in the Fall 2009 and the Spring 2010 issues: <http://research.mlanet.org/wp/hypothesis/>

Hi all,

Yes, Leah Osterhaus-Trzasko, Ann Farrell, Melissa Rethlefsen and I, sent out a survey along the topic of authorship practices in medical librarianship. The results will be presented at the MLA?15 meeting (Poster # 225). And I believe there are at least a couple more paper/ posters about librarian co-authorship that will be presented at MLA.

While I am unsure if the results from our survey will provide supporting basis for the PR Campaign, it is certainly a topic that needs further exploration and discussion.

Hi all

I think our colleagues are wrapping up a survey on authorship practices by medical librarians (Tara? is it Mayo librarians?) the results of which could provide some supporting basis for the PR campaign. My colleague Bertha Chang and I presented on authorship patterns with librarians in Web of Science at ACRL 2013 and are wrapping a manuscript to submit for publication this summer/fall. We'd be happy to share our initial findings. I think Kevin at MLA and our incoming president Michelle Kraft are very interested in PR campaigns so I am copying them on this message.....

I totally agree. Perhaps a PR campaign about the value of the researcher for publication that could be attached to the research packet? Or how about an article itself about this that could be promoted to department heads etc. just spinning and throwing out thoughts.

Jon Eldredge and Elisabeth Marrapodi are on target. Authorship is based on research design, writing, analysis of data, and full responsibility for the integrity of the work. And when librarians do that work, we should be (and would due to in-depth involvement from the beginning, be) listed as authors.

The work that librarians commonly do finding research literature is at the level where a published acknowledgment is appreciated.

A way to address this question is to consult the ICMJE guidelines for defining authorship:

<http://www.icmje.org/recommendations/browse/roles-and-responsibilities/defining-the-role-of-authors-and-contributors.html>

Realistically, I think that we sometimes would be more accurate and effective by advocating for ourselves for mention in the acknowledgments in an article.

Also, I wrote two pieces for librarians on the subject of defining and the order of authorship in Hypothesis in the Fall 2009 and the Spring 2010 issues: <http://research.mlanet.org/wp/hypothesis/>

If I may throw something in the ring to consider: is it really "authorship" in the traditional sense of the word? Yes, we may have contributed the lion's share of literature but we didn't read it, digest it, analyze it or extract from it. What we did was contribute. So perhaps asking for a nod in the acknowledgment section is more appropriate (and easier to obtain)?

You bring up a thorny and important issue.

National Jewish Health librarians negotiate authorship for all practice guideline collaborations for the fact that our involvement meets ICMJE guidelines. We make, what I consider to be, substantial contributions, which go beyond technical contributions. That said, authorship allocation is not straightforward. How is ghost or gift authoring perceived by the larger scientific community? Authorship assumes that one takes responsibility for quality and content of the whole publication. Many of us do contribute more than 'traditional' services, and it would serve us well to work together to help get appropriate credit for our efforts.

Thank you kindly for the conversation..

Hi everyone.

I taught my CE class, Research for Hospital Librarians, on Friday to the Metropolitan Detroit Medical Libraries Group. When I was discussing authorship, one of the participants made what I thought was a really good suggestion that I wanted to share and get your feedback on.

My comment was that, as hospital librarians, we likely aren't getting authorship on publications when we probably should be. I know from my own experience I am not and I've finally started saying something about it. I encouraged my class to also speak up for themselves if they know they're doing significant work for someone who is writing, publishing, presenting, etc. That's when one of them said that she would like to see the Research Section and MLA partner with ALA and put out a joint statement TO THE AMA on the importance of librarians and authorship. She thought it may be an effective way to have more clinicians realize and appreciate how much work we do, as opposed to bench or more traditional researchers who often have a different type of relationship with the library and (I suspect) are more likely to include librarians as authors. She also thought it may reinforce the fact that having a librarian as an author lends extra weight to the article since it is more likely to have a thorough background search done first.

Thoughts? I know the number of hospital librarians is small, if there are even any others besides myself. Quite honestly, I don't know.

Regardless, what do you guys think? Should we approach this, and if so, how? Should it be an agenda item at the business meeting at MLA?

I agree that a statement by the Research Section and MLA would be useful. I also think that what Heather is doing to encourage librarians to speak out is even more important. I have found that a few clinicians will think to ask if I would like authorship, but for the most part, they do not understand our role in that area. If we do not ask, they may never understand. It's up to us individually to point out our contributions and ask for recognition. I have never been turned down for authorship when I have requested it, but I only request it when I feel I have contributed substantially to a work.

We need to keep in mind that authorship criteria is different in different areas and from one journal to another. So we may be denied authorship by one journal and accepted by another. The ICMJE below includes acquisition of data, while similar Harvard standards do not. Either way, as an author, the librarian should be ready to take full responsibility for the manuscript, which means we should be involved in final approval and editing.

The ICMJE recommends that authorship be based on the following 4 criteria:

- * Substantial contributions to the conception or design of the work; or the acquisition, analysis, or interpretation of data for the work; AND
- * Drafting the work or revising it critically for important intellectual content; AND
- * Final approval of the version to be published; AND
- * Agreement to be accountable for all aspects of the work in ensuring that questions related to the accuracy or integrity of any part of the work are appropriately investigated and resolved.

Authorship - Harvard Medical School

1. Everyone who is listed as an author should have made a substantial, direct, intellectual contribution to the work. For example (in the case of a research report) they should have contributed to the conception, design, analysis and/or interpretation of data. Honorary or guest authorship is not acceptable. Acquisition of funding and provision of technical services, patients, or materials, while they may be essential to the work, are not in themselves sufficient contributions to justify authorship.

2. Everyone who has made substantial intellectual contributions to the work should be an author. Everyone who has made other substantial contributions should be acknowledged.

3. When research is done by teams whose members are highly specialized, individuals' contributions and responsibility may be limited to specific aspects of the work.

4. All authors should participate in writing the manuscript by reviewing drafts and approving the final version.
5. One author should take primary responsibility for the work as a whole even if he or she does not have an in-depth understanding of every part of the work.
6. This primary author should assure that all authors meet basic standards for authorship and should prepare a concise, written description of their contributions to the work, which has been approved by all authors. This record should remain with the sponsoring department.

I'm coming late to this conversation, but thought I would add something to the other thoughtful comments made here. Even if you are only providing extensive or even systematic searches for a project, then I think it would be worth asking if the project team could use a librarian/author to sort through the searching process with them, who could contribute to the analysis of the literature and write parts of the final paper, especially the methodology sections. If the answer is no, then the process stops. However, the recent focus on systematic reviews has helped highlight the importance of librarians as authors (see, for example, the AHRQ statement at <http://effectivehealthcare.ahrq.gov/ehc/products/60/318/CER-Methods-Guide-140109.pdf>), but my sense from talking to researchers is that this is still a fairly novel idea. I think most researchers have generally never considered the possibility of including a librarian on their teams, but might if the suggestion were made.

So, I would say, if you are interested in participating as a team member and think you can contribute as an author, ask.

Richard

I am also going to jump in late as well because I have been giving thought to what many had mentioned yesterday about being named a contributor.

I have also been included as a contributor before. And, though I appreciated the thoughtfulness, I never really did much other than send a quick thanks. I'm now wondering, though, if this can be added to my CV. Does anyone else add contributor mentions to theirs? Maybe as a separate section with the title contributor mentions or something of the sort (as opposed to being listed within published articles) so it is clear you are not claiming authorship?

This has been a great discussion thread! I've really enjoyed following it.

I'm coming late to this conversation, but thought I would add something to the other thoughtful comments made here. Even if you are only providing extensive or even systematic searches for a project, then I think it would be worth asking if the project team could use a librarian/author to sort through the searching process with them, who could contribute to the analysis of the literature and write parts of the final paper, especially the methodology sections. If the answer is no, then the process stops. However, the recent focus on systematic reviews has helped highlight the importance of librarians as authors (see, for example, the AHRQ statement at <http://effectivehealthcare.ahrq.gov/ehc/products/60/318/CER-Methods-Guide-140109.pdf>), but my sense from talking to researchers is that this is still a fairly novel idea. I think most researchers have generally never considered the possibility of including a librarian on their teams, but might if the suggestion were made.

So, I would say, if you are interested in participating as a team member and think you can contribute as an author, ask.

Richard

A way to address this question is to consult the ICMJE guidelines for defining authorship:

<http://www.icmje.org/recommendations/browse/roles-and-responsibilities/defining-the-role-of-authors-and-contributors.html>

Realistically, I think that we sometimes would be more accurate and effective by advocating for ourselves for mention in the acknowledgments in an article.

Also, I wrote two pieces for librarians on the subject of defining and the order of authorship in Hypothesis in the Fall 2009 and the Spring 2010 issues: <http://research.mlanet.org/wp/hypothesis/>

If I may throw something in the ring to consider: is it really "authorship" in the traditional sense of the word? Yes, we may have contributed the lion's share of literature but we didn't read it, digest it, analyze it or extract from it. What we did was contribute. So perhaps asking for a nod in the acknowledgment section is more appropriate (and easier to obtain)?

You bring up a thorny and important issue.

National Jewish Health librarians negotiate authorship for all practice guideline collaborations for the fact that our involvement meets ICMJE guidelines. We make, what I consider to be, substantial contributions, which go beyond technical contributions. That said, authorship allocation is not straightforward. How is ghost or gift authoring perceived by the larger scientific community? Authorship assumes that one takes responsibility for quality and content of the whole publication. Many of us do contribute more than 'traditional' services, and it would serve us well to work together to help get appropriate credit for our efforts.

Thank you kindly for the conversation..

Hi everyone.

I taught my CE class, Research for Hospital Librarians, on Friday to the Metropolitan Detroit Medical Libraries Group. When I was discussing authorship, one of the participants made what I thought was a really good suggestion that I wanted to share and get your feedback on.

My comment was that, as hospital librarians, we likely aren't getting authorship on publications when we probably should be. I know from my own experience I am not and I've finally started saying something about it. I encouraged my class to also speak up for themselves if they know they're doing significant work for someone who is writing, publishing, presenting, etc. That's when one of them said that she would like to see the Research Section and MLA partner with ALA and put out a joint statement TO THE AMA on the importance of librarians and authorship. She thought it may be an effective way to have more clinicians realize and appreciate how much work we do, as opposed to bench or more traditional researchers who often have a different type of relationship with the library and (I suspect) are more likely to include librarians as authors. She also thought it may reinforce the fact that having a librarian as an author lends extra weight to the article since it is more likely to have a thorough background search done first.

Thoughts? I know the number of hospital librarians is small, if there are even any others besides myself. Quite honestly, I don't know.

Regardless, what do you guys think? Should we approach this, and if so, how? Should it be an agenda item at the business meeting at MLA?

Thanks everyone who gave their 2 cents on my post yesterday about librarians and authorship.

I received a lot of feedback, much of which was sent just to me instead of the list. I'm going to summarize the comments (anonymously) and post them somewhere so anyone interested can take a look. There's lots of food for thought.

As some of the comments came back I realized I should have been more clear in why I was posing the question, but at the same time I think my unintentional lack of detail added to the conversation. So, to be clear, I specifically was referring to hospital librarians who are doing work that meets ICMJE recommendations. Had I said that more clearly to begin with there probably would've been fewer responses stressing ICMJE, but regardless, I got a lot of interesting feedback.

Once I get the summaries compiled I'll send another message with a link to wherever I host them so you all can see what was said. This probably won't happen before MLA, but maybe.

I assure you I will be sure they are completely anonymous, however, if you sent a message that you would rather not be included in my summary just let me know and I'll omit it.

Thanks again for all of the feedback and I hope to see many of you at MLA in Austin.

This is a great idea of placing a separate area on your CV for acknowledgements. I am going to take this idea and run with it. Thanks Melissa.

I have also been included as a contributor before. And, though I appreciated the thoughtfulness, I never really did much other than send a quick thanks. I'm now wondering, though, if this can be added to my CV. Does anyone else add contributor mentions to theirs? Maybe as a separate section with the title contributor mentions or something of the sort (as opposed to being listed within published articles) so it is clear you are not claiming authorship?

This has been a great discussion thread! I've really enjoyed following it.

I'm coming late to this conversation, but thought I would add something to the other thoughtful comments made here. Even if you are only providing extensive or even systematic searches for a project, then I think it would be worth asking if the project team could use a librarian/author to sort through the searching process with them, who could contribute to the analysis of the literature and write parts of the final paper, especially the methodology sections. If the answer is no, then the process stops. However, the recent focus on systematic reviews has helped highlight the importance of librarians as authors (see, for example, the AHRQ statement at <http://effectivehealthcare.ahrq.gov/ehc/products/60/318/CER-Methods-Guide-140109.pdf>), but my sense from talking to researchers is that this is still a fairly novel idea. I think most researchers have generally never considered the possibility of including a librarian on their teams, but might if the suggestion were made.

So, I would say, if you are interested in participating as a team member and think you can contribute as an author, ask.

Richard

A way to address this question is to consult the ICMJE guidelines for defining authorship:

<http://www.icmje.org/recommendations/browse/roles-and-responsibilities/defining-the-role-of-authors-and-contributors.html>

Realistically, I think that we sometimes would be more accurate and effective by advocating for ourselves for mention in the acknowledgments in an article.

Also, I wrote two pieces for librarians on the subject of defining and the order of authorship in Hypothesis in the Fall 2009 and the Spring 2010 issues: <http://research.mlanet.org/wp/hypothesis/>

If I may throw something in the ring to consider: is it really ?authorship?
in the traditional sense of the word? Yes, we may have contributed the lion?s
share of literature but we didn?t read it, digest it, analyze it or extract from it. What we did was contribute. So perhaps asking for a nod in the acknowledgment section is more appropriate (and easier to obtain)?

Subject: Re: [Research-mla] Authorship recommendation

You bring up a thorny and important issue.

National Jewish Health librarians negotiate authorship for all practice guideline collaborations for the fact that our involvement meets ICMJE guidelines. We make, what I consider to be, substantial contributions, which go beyond technical contributions. That said, authorship allocation is not straightforward. How is ghost or gift authoring perceived by the larger scientific community? Authorship assumes that one takes responsibility for quality and content of the whole publication. Many of us do contribute more than ?traditional? services, and it would serve us well to work together to help get appropriate credit for our efforts.

Thank you kindly for the conversation..

Hi everyone.

I taught my CE class, Research for Hospital Librarians, on Friday to the Metropolitan Detroit Medical Libraries Group. When I was discussing authorship, one of the participants made what I thought was a really good suggestion that I wanted to share and get your feedback on.

My comment was that, as hospital librarians, we likely aren't getting authorship on publications when we probably should be. I know from my own experience I am not and I've finally started saying something about it. I encouraged my class to also speak up for themselves if they know they're doing significant work for someone who is writing, publishing, presenting, etc. That's when one of them said that she would like to see the Research Section and MLA partner with ALA and put out a joint statement TO THE AMA on the importance of librarians and authorship. She thought it may be an effective way to have more clinicians realize and appreciate how much work we do, as opposed to bench or more traditional researchers who often have a different type of relationship with the library and (I suspect) are more likely to include librarians as authors. She also thought it may reinforce the fact that having a librarian as an author lends extra weight to the article since it is more likely to have a thorough background search done first.

Thoughts? I know the number of hospital librarians is small, if there are even any others besides myself. Quite honestly, I don't know.

Regardless, what do you guys think? Should we approach this, and if so, how? Should it be an agenda item at the business meeting at MLA?

Sorry for cross posting!

This may interest some physicians and faculty. Data can be used in comparison to compare your local area to national/state averages for grants and other applications.

The National Center for Health Statistics <http://www.cdc.gov/nchs/index.htm> announces the release of Health, United States, 2014.

Health, United States is the annual report on the health status of the nation, compiled by the National Center for Health Statistics and submitted by the Secretary of Health and Human Services to the President and Congress. Each year, Health, United States examines an important health topic and this year's special feature explores the health of the 55-64 age group. This group was born during the height of the Baby Boom and will become Medicare eligible over the next 10 years. The feature compares their health to those who were 55-64 years old a decade ago. Adults aged 55-64 are entering a period of life increasingly influenced by chronic conditions, which are the leading causes of death and disability in the United States. Among the highlights:

- * Current 55-64 year olds are more racially diverse than a decade earlier with non-Hispanic white persons comprising almost 75%, non-Hispanic black persons about 11% and Hispanic persons almost 10%.
- * In 2009-2012 the prevalence of diabetes was close to 19%, the prevalence of obesity was about 40% and the prevalence of hypertension was just over 51% among 55-64 year olds, unchanged from a decade earlier.
- * In 2012-2013, adults aged 55-64 living below 100% of poverty were nearly three times as likely to be current smokers as those at 400% or more of poverty (32.4% vs 11.2%).
- * In 2009-2012, nearly half (45%) of adults aged 55-64 took a prescription cardiovascular drug, and 15% used a prescription analgesic, similar to levels a decade earlier.

The report also features detailed tables and charts displaying health statistics trends over time on: birth and death rates, infant mortality, life expectancy, morbidity and health status, risk factors, use of ambulatory and inpatient care, health personnel and facilities, financing of health care, health insurance and managed care, and other health topics. A variety of resources can be found on the Health, United States webpage, including the full report featuring a chartbook and trend tables. A special abridged edition, Health, United States, 2014: In Brief <http://www.cdc.gov/nchs/hs.htm> is also available as a companion to the full report.

Greetings again RS Members!

Our members and section will be busy at this year's MLA meeting! Attached is a list of all the papers and posters members let me know they will be presenting at the Meeting. There are many great papers and posters on the list, so please review the list and plan to stop by to support each other if you can! I have also attached a list of the section programs and meetings we have sponsored.

Additionally, don't forget the following events! Especially the Business Meeting on Tuesday morning.

Research Award Poster and Paper Judging Instruction Meeting
Sunday 8:00-8:55am
Convention Center, Level Four, 16A

Open Forum: The MLA Research Agenda Systematic Review Project
Sunday 4:30-5:55pm

Message-ID: <ED02C51E07817345AFC635E667B2A8F020063167@msgb05.nih.gov>

Dear Colleagues -

I am sharing an announcement from our colleagues at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) that we have just received:

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) is seeking two exceptional candidates to serve in the position of Lead Librarian at the Stephen B. Thacker CDC Library. We are looking for experienced, motivated, senior-level librarians and we are reaching out to you to help raise awareness about this exciting opportunity! The CDC Library serves as a hub for research, information exchange, and learning for CDC staff. These positions are located at the main library location at CDC Headquarters in Atlanta, Georgia.

We hope you will forward this message, and encourage those interested to apply for this opportunity. More information on the positions and application information can be found at www.usajobs.gov<<http://www.usajobs.gov>> under vacancy announcements HHS-CDC-M2-15-1401274<<https://www.usajobs.gov/GetJob/ViewDetails/403188500>> and HHS-CDC-D2-15-1414067<<https://www.usajobs.gov/GetJob/ViewDetails/404699900>> .

Date: Mon, 15 Jun 2015 18:19:09 +0100
Subject: [Research-mla] Evidence Based Library and Information Practice
Seeks Peer Reviewers
Message-ID:
<CAOl1vucARkTWdFrzXWsNuKZJGV5kVuMmy31gNrFk6a=nRE67sXg@mail.gmail.com>

The Evidence Based Library and Information Practice Journal would like to announce an opportunity to become a peer reviewer for the EBLIP Journal.

The role involves:

? Providing in-depth peer review of original research articles, evidence summaries, classic evidence summaries, or review articles. The total number of peer review requests will vary depending upon content submitted to the journal, but reviewers, typically, are asked to review 2 to 4 submissions per year.

? Contributing to the overall success of the journal by providing unbiased, fair, and timely reviews of submissions that are assigned.

? Communicating with the Editorial Board about areas where the journal could improve.

? Promoting EBLIP as an avenue of publication to colleagues.

The ideal candidate is a professional or researcher in the area of librarianship and information practice and well-versed in evidence based practice and research methods. Interested persons should send a statement of interest, indicating areas of strength they would bring to the role, as well as a brief resume to Dr. Lorie Kloda, Editor-in-Chief at eblipjournal at gmail.com.

Peer reviewers for the journal follow detailed guidelines supplied by the Editorial Board. The double-blind peer review process is managed through the Online Journal System for notification, acceptance, and reviewers' comments.

The deadline for individuals to indicate their interest is July 15, 2015.

About the journal:

Published quarterly by the University of Alberta, this peer reviewed, open access journal is targeted at all library and information professionals interested in an evidence based model of practice. By facilitating access to library and information studies research via original research articles and evidence summaries of relevant research from the library literature, Evidence Based Library and Information Practice enables information professionals to practice their profession in an evidence-based manner.

Please visit the Evidence Based Library and Information Practice website (<http://ejournals.library.ualberta.ca/index.php/EBLIP>) for further information about the journal.

Greetings Research Section!

I hope everyone is enjoying the summer!

It was wonderful to see so many of you in-person at the Business meeting. We had many helpful and interesting conversations and generated some excellent ideas and plans for this year. We missed everyone that was unable to attend, but you can catch up by reviewing the attached Minutes. If anyone notices any errors please send them to Martha Earl (mearl at utmck.edu<mailto:mearl at utmck.edu>) or me, so we can update them.

The Section Officers and Committee Chairs met this afternoon to discuss planned projects and activities. You will soon see requests for volunteers or feedback on a number of items, such as planning for next year's Annual Meeting; setting our Section's goals; working with the MLA Research Imperative Taskforce; moving the web content to Socious; reviewing Hypothesis; exploring sponsorship for awards; and more! So if you are interested in getting more involved there will be plenty of opportunities!

I look forward to working with many of you during the coming year. If you have questions or suggestions at any time, please don't hesitate to contact me.

Best!

Research Section members,

The Research Section and the MLA Research Imperative Task Force are seeking volunteers to serve on a new project team that will develop a new educational resource to support the research activities of health sciences librarians. The team will be tasked to develop a new 'Research Resources and Tools' web page for the new MLA website/system that will provide research aids, tools, guides, calculators, practical research examples, links to tutorials/webinars/classes, mentoring information, presentation/writing guides, etc. The new resource page should be completed by May 2016 and the service tenure would be for one year.

If you are interested in helping with the Research Resources and Tools web project or if you want to learn more about this effort, please contact Susan Lessick, slessick at uci.edu <mailto:slessick at uci.edu>, *by July 31, 2015*. We encourage you to become involved because it is a great opportunity to network/collaborate with colleagues, learn more about research resources, and contribute to the Research Section and MLA research efforts.

Subject: [mosaic2016_planners] Seeking abstract reviewers for
MLA/CHLA/ABSC/ICLC 2016

Do you want to review abstracts for papers, posters, and lightning talks for Mosaic 2016/Mosa?que 2016? Fill out this Reviewer Interest form<Fill%20out%20this%20Reviewer%20Interest%20form> (at <http://goo.gl/forms/7TjgBnvGG5>).

Reviewing will occur in English language only. Reviewing will begin September 16th 2015 and end on November 11th 2015. It is anticipated that each reviewer will need to devote ~5-8 hours to reviewing during this time-frame. Reviewing will occur using an online system that can be accessed 24/7 during the review time-frame. You can sign up to review abstracts and also submit your own abstract and help your colleagues with their abstracts-the online reviewing system will not match reviewers with their own abstracts, and will also include a method for reviewers to recuse themselves from reviewing specific abstracts for any reason.

Reviewing processes have changed significantly from prior MLA conferences-for example, reviewers used to be recruited through MLA sections rather than through an open call to all members. Online training on how to conduct reviews will occur on August 18th from 2-3 pm Eastern Time. The training will be recorded and made available online to all reviewers throughout the entire period of review. By filling out the Reviewer Interest form, you will receive an invitation to this training.

Please feel free to forward this message to your colleagues in MLA, CHLA/ABSC, and ICLC. All members from all organizations are welcome to participate in reviewing of abstracts. Any questions, concerns, or comments, contact me, Amy Chatfield, section council liaison to the Joint Planning Committee, at amychatf at usc.edu<mailto:amychatf at usc.edu> or 1-323-442-1128.

Check out the Mosaic 2016/Mosa?que 2016 website at <https://www.mlanet.org/meetings/am/mla16/index.html> for more information about the meeting!

Message-ID:
<7096778FA8E9774CA1B69163D8AFCAF5B6B912A6@MAILBOX3.medadmin.arizona.edu>

Dear Research Section members,

Starting in mid-September, this email list will have a new address: Research at lists.mlanet.org

This email address will be associated with a new members-only web forum on the section website, where you can interact online, view conversations as threads, and search conversation topics. You can also continue to use the list as a standard email list.

Around September 16, everyone will be unsubscribed from this list, and the email address will be deactivated. When the switch is made, MLA headquarters will send out a notification reminding us that this email address has become defunct. Please watch your address books and autofill settings to make sure you're not posting to the old list.

Section members will then be resubscribed to the new list. If your section membership is not current, please be sure to renew your membership now so you can continue to participate in this forum.

All members will be signed up for daily digest delivery as a starting default. You will then be able to adjust your delivery settings for:

- immediate delivery
- daily digest
- no mail (access posts only through the website)
- vacation mode (allows you to unsubscribe temporarily and then resubscribe with a click of a button)

If you are using a personal or secondary email address to receive section emails, please note that you will initially be switched to the main email address associated with your MLA membership. After the switch is completed, you will be able to log in and adjust this preference as well.

Thanks for your patience during this transition! Please let me know if you have any questions.

 Subject: [Research-mla] Research Section Poster Display at MLA Chapter Meetings

Message-ID:

<CAG1pkE0dyY6g2dnapWdGJT_h5N2SfetbiM1Dr6yvVzVMB+b90g@mail.gmail.com>

Dear Research Section Members,

Hope you are having a great fall gearing up for Chapter meetings! As you all know, the Research Section has two new cloth posters that are easy to fold and ship. We want to encourage RS members to display the RS poster at some of the chapter meetings.

Emily Mazur, our Section Chair will display the RS poster at the Mid Atlantic Chapter meeting October 17-20 and Merle Rosenzweig our Past-Chair at the Midwest Chapter meeting, October 2-6.

Would anyone be willing to see about whether it could be displayed at your chapter meetings? It could basically be mailed from meeting to meeting since it is so light. Shipping is just a few dollars and the section could provide pre-stamped envelopes so that those willing to host the poster wouldn't incur any shipping costs.

The list of meetings is at 2015-2016 MLA Chapter Meeting Schedule <<https://www.mlanet.org/community/chapters/chapterschedule.html>> - unfortunately, there is some overlap and we only have two posters, but being able to cover at least a few of the big meetings would be terrific.

Thanks for considering it! You can reply to me directly at *beatriz.varman at library.tmc.edu <beatriz.varman at library.tmc.edu>* and I will try to coordinate.

Regards,

September 2015

Subject: [Research-mla] Second call to participate in a study on librarian journal clubs
Message-ID: <D20F3C3F.1204D%lorie.kloda@mcgill.ca>

Hello,

We are conducting a research study exploring the value of journal club participation for librarians.

As part of this research, we invite academic librarians who are currently or have recently participated in a journal club for an interview of approximately 30 minutes to one hour. The interview will be conducted online using either Skype or VSee software (free to use).

Sometimes referred to as ?discussion groups? or ?reading groups,? journal clubs can be defined as meetings where participants engage in critical appraisal of research publications. The various purposes of journal clubs include developing a community of practice, learning about research trends and methodologies, and integrating evidence into practice. Journal clubs therefore can be linked to informal learning in the workplace.

To be eligible to participate in the study, you must be an academic librarian, comfortable speaking in English, and have attended two or more journal club meetings in the last 12 months. Any type of journal club, whether specifically for librarians or not, is acceptable. This study has been approved by the Institutional Review Board of McGill University (Canada).

If you are interested in participating, please contact Megan Fitzgibbons, Librarian at the University of Western Australia, at megan.fitzgibbons@uwa.edu.au for more information.

Sincerely,

Dear members

When the mailing lists are migrated to Socinus the email that will be used will be the one on file with MLA in your profile. If you want to have a different email you will either need to update your profile or we will learn how to change it after the migration has occurred.

I know some people use a different email than their work email so unless that is on file it will not be migrated.

All new members will be automatically added to the list when they join.

Call for Nominations: Fellows and Honorary Members of the Medical Library Association (MLA)

MLA's greatest assets are the collective wisdom of its members and the support received from friends and affiliates. Some of our colleagues have made sustained and outstanding contributions to the profession and are deserving of recognition as Fellows of MLA. Individuals who are not members but who have similarly contributed in a significant way to advancing the missions of the Association and profession may also be recognized as Honorary Members. Please consider nominating a colleague for Fellow or a non-member for Honorary Member status. Peer recognition builds a stronger community!

Nominations are due to MLA November 1, 2015. Please visit MLANET at <https://www.mlanet.org/about/awards-and-honors> for details and to access the nomination application form. Please email Jerry Perry, MLS, AHIP, Jury Chair, at jerryperry at email.arizona.edu<mailto:jerryperry at email.arizona.edu> for additional information or questions.

Dear section members,

As you may have already heard from your section leaders, this list is moving to MLA's new community platform. All committee members who are current MLA members have been added to the new list, *Research at lists.mlanet.org
<Research at lists.mlanet.org>.*

Within the next 24-48 hours, research-mla at research.mlanet.org will be turned off. Past conversations will be archived and accessible to your community members.

By the end of the day on Friday, you should receive your first email from the new list. If you do not receive an email from the new list by Friday, *please check that your MLA membership is current*, and then contact MLA headquarters for troubleshooting.

The new email list is associated with a new online community for your group, where you can interact online, view conversations as threads, and search conversation topics. The new community is located at:
www.mlanet.org/p/co/ly/gid=29.

You can also continue to use the list as a standard email list. Please watch your address books and autofill settings to make sure you're not posting to the old list. Any emails sent to the old list will be bounced back.

All committee members have been signed up for immediate message delivery as a default. After the new site is live, you will be able to adjust your delivery preferences. We recommend keeping your delivery preferences as immediate so you do not miss out on time-sensitive committee discussions.

Thank you for your patience during this transition, and we hope that the new community is of significant value to your group!

Sincerely,

Kate Corcoran
