WELCOME TO NEW YORK

The 1985 National Program Committee and the Local Arrangements Committees have planned a program of remarkable variety for the 85th annual meeting of the Medical Library Association. Plenary sessions of general interest are complemented by sessions of immediate and specific relevance to groups and sections within the Association. An expanded educational program combines future-oriented training seminars with a major colloquium on collection development, and the MLA exhibit promises to display a wide range of products and services important to biomedical information management. Libraries of all types and specialties abound in the metropolitan area and welcome your visit.

The days will be full. But, don't forget to set aside time to enjoy "our town." New York reaches from modern towers of glass and brass to quiet residential streets and ethnic enclaves. Here tradition and history stand side by side with the trendy. New York is a place for the scholar, the bibliophile, the theater-goer, the shopper, the gourmet . . . a place for walking, exploring, discovering . . . a place of boundless resources.

We welcome you to New York.

We welcome you to MLA 85.

Rachael K. Goldstein Anderson, Chairman
1985 National Program Committee

Give your patrons the index that covers the human side of medicine:

The Social Sciences Citation Index®.

As every medical librarian knows, the medical sciences, the social sciences, and the behavioral sciences are closely related. That's why every medical library needs the Social Sciences Citation Index.

to every item from more than 1,445 journals!

Many medical libraries rely on the SSCI for this valuable coverage: the University of Arizona Health Sciences Center, the Houston Academy of Medicine, Letterman

Army Medical Center, Massachusetts General Hospital, and the University of North Carolina School of Medicine are just a few of them. And we invite you to join them. . . .

The SSCI® can add valuable coverage to your reference collection in the many areas concerned with the human aspect of medicine . . . topics like drugs and addiction, gerontology, social issues, rehabilitation, psychology, and hygiene and public health. And the Social Sciences Citation Index can give your patrons access

For more information about the Social Sciences Citation Index, come to ISI's Booths 67, 68, & 69. And while you're there, enter our drawing for a FREE 1984 SSCI annual!

OCLC UPDATE

Introducing SC350

State-of-the-Art Serials Control

Why should libraries settle for anything less than state-of-the-art serials control? They shouldn't. That's why OCLC now offers SC350, a microcomputer-based serials control service that augments and enhances our existing serials control services.

A full range of capabilities

SC350 supports a wide range of technical services needs: bibliographic record selection and transfer, automatic check-in and claiming, routing, binding, financial control, report generation, and more.

Round the clock accessibility

SC350 software is designed for use with the OCLC M300 Workstation, enabling libraries to combine the advantages of microcomputing with a direct link to our Online Systems. With SC350, you have greater flexibility and increased processing options, including operation during those hours when our Online Systems are unavailable. SC350 lets you and your staff access local serials records 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

State-of-the-art support

OCLC offers SC350 users the same high level of support provided to all Online Systems users. OCLC's computer expertise, combined with that of network staffs, assures your library of the best support for the best serials control: SC350.

Link to LS/2000

LS/2000, OCLC's powerful Local Library System, will provide a link with SC350. The link enables libraries to transfer summary and detailed holdings information into the LS/2000 Online Catalog and Circulation System in order to maintain an integrated local library system.

Springer-Verlag

—Publishing New Ideas and State-of-the-Art Techniques

Throughout the medical and scientific world, Springer-Verlag has an established reputation as the publisher of outstanding books and journals.

Since 1842 when Julius Springer expanded his Berlin bookstore to publish the books his customers needed, Springer-Verlag has had its finger on the pulse of the international market. Today, in addition to offices in Berlin and Heidelberg, Springer-Verlag has branches in New York, Vienna and Tokyo. This worldwide network of cooperation ensures that wherever advances are being made, Springer-Verlag is nearby to bring the news to you. Over 8,000 titles are now in print, with an additional 1,000 new titles released yearly. Above the Springer-Verlag logo you will find such renowned series as Comprehensive Manuals of Surgical Specialties, Clinical Perspectives in Obstetrics and Gynecology and Recent Results in Cancer Research; critically acclaimed titles such as Operative Strategy in General Surgery and Geriatric Medicine; plus audiovisual materials illustrating orthopaedic trauma, microsurgery and urologic techniques. Springer-Verlag is also known for over 100 timely medical journals including World Journal of Surgery, Experimental Hematology, Archives of Orthopaedic and Traumatic Surgery and the award-winning Kidney International.

New York Office Now 20 Years Old

In 1964, Dr. Heinz Goetze established the New York branch of Springer-Verlag. Located in the historic Flatiron Building, this office annually publishes over 100 books, 30 journals and several magazines including M.D. Computing and ABACUS. Excellence in production and the increasing emphasis on English as the scientific language of choice has strengthened the impact of Springer-Verlag New York upon the North American medical and scientific community.

For a Closer Look

For a closer look at the Springer-Verlag books and journals that belong in your library, stop by our booth at the Medical Library Association Meeting in New York City, May 27-29, or call Mary Fugle, Library Sales Manager at 212-460-1574.

FRONTIERS IN MEDICINE

Implications for the Future

Sponsored by the American Longevity Association

In Frontiers in Medicine, many of the world's most prominent medical scientists, including Michael DeBakey, Leonard Hayflick, Robert Good and Robert Butler, and Nobel-Laureates Baruch Blumberg, Andrew Schally and U.S. von Euler, present and interpret recent developments in the major life-threatening disorders of heart disease, cancer and diabetes, as well as in a broad spectrum of age-related disorders. Emphasis is on those research advances that can be applied in current practice.

THE HIGH COST OF HEALING

Physicians and the Health Care System

This insightful volume explores the responsibility that physicians must bear for the high cost of medical care today. While blame for the spiralling costs of medical care is often placed on the hospitals, the author contends that it is physicians' tendency to overuse drugs, technology and hospitals, in their pursuit of excellence and financial gain, that is the primary culprit.

How the AMA library provides instant care for America's physicians.

Like most special libraries, the American Medical Association's Division of Library and Information Management has specific needs and a unique clientele.

The library serves as a central information source for the AMA. That translates to 70,000 requests a year for highly specific information, including 10,000 requests from among the 252,000 member physicians. To help fill those requests accurately and quickly, the AMA library has developed parallel collections in microform for more than half its serials holdings.

Dr. Arthur Hafner, Director of the AMA Division of Library and Information Management, explains: "Within any special library there is a sense of urgency. Special libraries, by necessity, function on the user's terms. We must give our clients the information they need as soon as we possibly can. Our clients want what they want, and they want it today. That's why microforms are vital to our operation."

Dr. Hafner believes that the level of the library's performance is much higher with microforms. "Our staff retrieves information, Today, 880 current titles and corresponding backfiles dating back to 1955 are on microfilm at the AMA—all supplied by University Microfilms International (UMI). The AMA library chose UMI as its supplier because of the large number of available titles and the ease with which they can be procured, the high quality of UMI microforms, and the responsiveness of the UMI staff.

Says Dr. Hafner: "The AMA's decision to use film may encourage medical and other special libraries to view film as a viable, effective solution to the access problem."

UMI can also help you meet the needs of your special clients. If you're wondering whether serials in microform are the right prescription for your library, or you'd like further information, call or write:

often beginning with an online search, and forwards it to the client. Microforms allow our librarians to locate sources more quickly because they know exactly what information we have and exactly where it is."

When information is more accessible to librarians, it's more readily available to physicians—physicians who base their decisions on the latest findings, the most current information available.

We put information to work

The Institute for Scientific Information is an international corporation which develops and markets computer-based information services. Our products and services help physicians, librarians, and researchers locate precisely the information they need from the vast amount available in scientific and scholarly journals and books. The information located with the aid of ISI services is put to work each week by nearly half a million individuals in a wide range of academic, governmental and commercial organizations throughout the world.

ISI's information services include current awareness tools which alert subscribers to new medical developments as they happen. Retrospective search tools enable users to find documents published in the past which may be of interest to them now. Our document delivery service supplies articles from the over 6,800 journals covered in ISI's data bases, giving users access to a collection of the world's most important journals. ISI also offers micro-computer software which simplifies computerized searching and managing files.
